MESSAGE

I am glad to learn that British Institute of Technology and E-Commerce is organizing World Hi-Tech Forum 2008 (focus India) during 7 – 8 October, 2008 at London. The Conference, I believe, is an important platform to exchange best practices, network for business opportunity and create global partnership. The Conference is highlighting many major areas including the role of Government, the innovation process, global partnering and beyond the internet.

The Government of India is working with multi-national companies, Governments and organisations to bring in sustainable investment opportunities in the Communication and Information Technology sector. India has one of the world's largest communication networks in the world and we are proud to support the technology industry by our talent pool in Information and Communication Technology.

I wish the successful deliberation of the World Hi-Tech Forum leading to business creation between India and the World.

(A. RAJA)
